Man has been using tools now for roughly two million years. They have often made his life easier, safer, and more efficient. Every known task now has a tool best suited to it, and using the wrong one can lead to sweating, bleeding, even drowning (I'm thinking of the iron wetsuit). No shark bites, but...

Oddly enough, I see BCS as a hardware store: the one-stop-shop that provides all the tools you will eventually need to get through whatever project you have in mind after graduating. One important difference: you are encouraged to use the tools you already have. Whatever you are missing, BCS surely has in stock.

As Associate Director of Development, The Bulletin is by far the most important tangible tool at my disposal. It allows me to keep Alumni and friends up to speed with goings-on at the School (even outside the School through class notes), and most importantly, it allows me to showcase BCS. You will find a few new aspects in this edition, and in your old School as well...

Now that I am back on campus, it is obvious that this School is a special place. 167 years of excellence in education, the School is founded on traditions that have stood the test of time. The generous gifts and pledges that many of you have given have provided new buildings and equipment to give BCS a face-lift. The introduction of the Tablet PC (now that is a cool tool!) in September is a huge step forward in making teaching/learning even easier; bringing modern, state-of-the-art technology into these venerable old walls I have come to love (even if my name does not grace them!). These reasons, along with dedicated staff that is second to none, are what make BCS an amazing head start to adulthood.

So, I hope you enjoy this edition of The Bulletin. All comments are more than welcome and appreciated (negative comments should only be accompanied by donations!). I take this opportunity to thank you all for making BCS what it is today, and I look forward to seeing you at the various events throughout the year.

—Charles de Sainte Marie

a word from the Headmaster

BCS has been around since 1836, KHC since 1874. BCS has been on this campus since 1922, KHC since 1972. BCS is old. It is a school with traditions, a school with character, a school with colourful and rich histories. At BCS, we try to ensure that our students appreciate where they are and in whose path they walk. At BCS, we remember the past.

It is, after all, around us every day. From the names on the walls at mealtime to the plaques on the way up to Chapel, from the three school crests over the front door to the wear on the marble treads of the stairs, we know we are not the first to be here.

And yet we are.

Students at BCS in 2004–2005 are the first to benefit from the magnificent (it really is magnificent) Hartland Molson Hall, the first to use the brilliantly renovated F.R. Pattison Science Building, the first to act in the state-of-the-art R. Lewis Evans Memorial theatre, and the first to study in the third incarnation of the Peter Holt Memorial Library. Moreover, the students this year are the first to learn with the Tablet PC – that’s a first in Canada, not just in our own history! BCS is a “traditional school” that has leapt to the front of the technological world.

As a boy from the Class of ’65 and as a teacher whose oldest former students are now in their late forties, and now as Head, I want BCS to be a place that our Alumni recognise on the one hand and are proud of on the other. I love to hear – as I frequently do – Alumni saying, “I wish I were at the School now!”

There must be a balance to everything. We cannot yearn for the simpler days of technology-free zones! Equally, we must not throw away ageless teaching practices that withstand the ebb and flow of trends in education. Our students are our job; preparing them for their future is our challenge. That future is an ever-changing target and we must anticipate the world that will await them. This is what we do at BCS – and we do this well.

At the beginning of his history of BCS, From Little Forks to Moulton Hill, Graham Patriquin quotes Proverbs XXIX, 18: “Where there is no vision, the people perish.” BCS has had, and continues to have, vision. Our faculty and staff have it, our administration has it and our student leaders have it.

Read this Bulletin. Log on to www.bishopscollegesschool.com. Better by far, come to Lennoxville and see us in action. Know your school; it will make you proud.

Lewis Evans

a word from the

As you read this Bulletin and visit BCS, you can’t help but sense the exciting, dynamic environment that is the School these days. As Lewis Evans notes, you may become a bit wistful about missing what’s there now. But do take the risk: it’s a wonderful place and you are an important part of it.

Lewis also mentioned our vision. We want to be, and to be known as, the world’s favourite boarding school, a school that provides a richness of life experiences that can’t be found elsewhere. We will do this by combining a stimulating academic programme with co-curricular activities that speak to the heart, soul and mind of each of our students—a contemporary interpretation of our motto, Recti Cultus Pectora Roborant. All this takes place on a magnificent campus, a safe and caring 24/7 environment, with individual attention and a world view that embraces the diversity of our students, mirroring the emerging Canada.

A lot of this is of course happening already. The School adopted a strategic plan in 1998 that focused on academic excellence. Then, BCS launched a capital campaign that raised over $15m for facilities, programmes and endowment. This fall, the Headmaster appointed a new Deputy Head for Academic Life, Daphne Nelson, and BCS becomes the first school in the country to equip all its students with Tablet PC’s.

In this year’s First Fruits competition in Montreal, 49% of all English-language prose and poetry accepted for publication, 43% of the French-language pieces and one-third of the artistic pieces were from this small school in Lennoxville. All members of the graduating class were accepted to the college or university of their choice, including the country’s top engineering and business programmes.

*No doubt there’s something strikes
a balance...*

a word from the incoming Board Chair

outgoing Chair

From my perspective, there is no question that BCS stands out as an excellent school because of the quality and dedication of its faculty and staff. The longer I am associated with BCS, the more impressed I have become with them—they are extraordinary!

Support from Alumni and friends to continue the School's mission and development has been fantastic, reflecting your belief in the contribution BCS has made and will make to the people it educates and the communities they serve.

It's a great pleasure to turn over the chairman's role to David Stenason (BCS '75). In doing so, I would like particularly to thank all members of the BCS boards for their serious interest and concern for the School's well being and future. Next year, we will ask for people to identify themselves as potential members of our alumni, foundation and association boards, as a way of broadening our contact with our community and finding the best people to help direct BCS towards its goals. Participating in the School's governance has been a very rewarding experience for me, and I am especially happy to see the leadership of the boards in such excellent hands.

Communicating BCS's attractions and raising its profile in target markets has proved to be a challenging task over many years. It is critical to our vision to get our story out: we need more parents and students, and others who influence the decisions they make, to hear about and come to this unique place. The School has put a three-year marketing plan in place to ensure full and stable enrolment with a waiting list of quality applicants.

A key part of this plan is, as it has always been, word of mouth. Tell your friends about BCS. Come see it, enjoy your memories and help your school become all it can be.

With best wishes,

I graduated from BCS almost 30 years ago. When I meet up with fellow Alumni who have not been to the School for a while, I am often asked, "Has it changed much?" I find myself always giving the same answer. In some ways, it doesn't seem to have changed at all. In other respects, it has changed light years.

What has not changed is the rich tradition and history that the School will always boast. A busy agenda designed to keep its students fully engaged is an old model that has never been more in fashion. The seemingly endless list of pursuits including cadets, a myriad of sports, club and house activities provide the students of BCS with a truly rich experience. Most of the buildings are more or less the same, with a few spectacular exceptions. The dedication of its leadership, teachers, and staff continues to be the bedrock upon which the School rests. However, BCS cannot thrive, or even survive, on history and tradition alone.

As we look forward, BCS must be a school built to thrive in the 21st Century. A school of the future offers the incredible diversity of students coming together from all over the world. It boasts successful Alumni who are making significant contributions both in Canada and abroad. It provides the very best in a pre-University education. Beyond the academic, it develops its students broadly. Clearly, BCS is on the right track.

Under the leadership of our retiring Chairman Doug Patriquin, the BCS Association Board of Directors has also been modernized and is ready for the future. Over the past three years, its membership has been slimmed down from 24 to 13. The frequency of its meetings has been increased from quarterly to almost monthly. Every director is on at least one committee. The board committees are aligned to coincide with the current organizational structure of the School's administration. Good governance is a must in today's world, and our Board takes this responsibility seriously. I look forward to leading this group over the next few years.

BCS is going through a very exciting period of change and is excellently positioned for the future. Its Board of Directors will be there to support this endeavor in every way.

—David J. Stenason, BCS '75

THE GIRL AT THE BUS STOP

I saw you only once.
It was winter and you were waiting In the bus shelter. Knees pulled up to your chest, you sat on the bench staring blankly at the snowdrifts, greasy hair falling in your eyes.

I stepped into the shelter,
avoiding the dirty puddle that had gathered by the door.

Your hands must have been cold, bare as they were, red and chapped.

I watched you as you opened your worn bag and took out a crumpled pack of cigarettes.
I was embarrassed when you glanced up and caught me watching.

You smiled at me though.
I almost spoke to you, but your eyes looked through mine, and I stopped myself.

You ripped a match out of its book and Lit a cigarette as the bus pulled up.
You took a few hard and desperate pulls.

You got onto the bus and threw the butt on to the ground.
It went out slowly as You pulled away.

I saw you only once.

AN IMPERFECT WORLD

If a red taxi stops at a green light, cement grows from the ocean,
and the ground shines blue,
we don't understand it.

We want something we can understand.
No squawking kangaroos flying weightlessly on steaming white winter nights, or lucid cockroaches mud wrestling in abandoned sprouting churches.

We want something we can make sense of.

No bare-skinned yellow cats barking inexplicit messages to metallic goblins, drops of wooden soap leaking
through echoing tin roofs, or swelling mountains of cherry wedding veils,
parallel to a wheezing kiwi sky.

Instead,
we want a perfect world,
a perfect lie,
a perfect family,
everything as it should properly be.
We want to live in box
and yet to understand.

Archives News

BCS is pleased to announce that the Bélanger-Gardner Foundation has awarded a grant to the Archives in support of a portrait photograph digitization project. The purpose of the project is to digitally remaster old portrait photographs in order that they may be published on the School's website, where Alumni and others interested in the School's history will be able to view this unique collection of photographs. The Internet accessibility will also facilitate the identification of individuals, subjects and events by Alumni and retired staff volunteers.

Your Change can Change Things...

A new fund-raising initiative is upon us. It revolves around your pocket change! Chump change, some call it. The coins you throw into a drawer or bowl when you get home every night is what can make a world of difference at BCS.

Some do not have the habit of giving annually; this is a way to help out your school financially, slowly accumulating an important donation throughout the year without feeling it. Upon your next visit to the School, step into the Development Office to ceremoniously 'Dump the Chump' into the life-size piggy bank! You will not leave empty handed; we will equip you accordingly with your very own purple BCS piggy bank to make giving that much easier next time around... and tax receipts are available upon request, of course.

Think about it, you won't even have to roll up your coins! If every Alum can muster a few handfuls of coins, change is just around the corner.

Rename the Crusaders!

The BCS teams are looking for a new identity. With so many countries represented at the School, a name must be found that respects all nationalities and cultures, especially with regards to religion. In today's world, good international relations are mandatory, and definitely important enough to be reflected on the playing fields of BCS. A few ideas are floating around, such as the Bishop's Crooks (get it?), the BCS First Team... All comments are welcome. Diplomacy, plays on words, historical ties to BCS, all will be taken into consideration when choosing the winner.

Send your ideas by e-mail to nallan@bishopscollegeschool.com, or call 819-566-0227, extension 210.

New Prefect System

At the beginning of the year a committee was formed (including both staff & students) to look at and possibly overhaul the Prefect system. This they did. After many early morning meetings the following was agreed upon:

- Students are invited to submit a CV in applying for the position of Prefect.
- Staff and students express their preference through voting.
- All candidates interviewed by the Headmaster and committee.
- Final selections made by the Headmaster and committee.
- Prefects will go through a 4-day training period prior to school opening.

Each Prefect will be given a portfolio or area of responsibility in the School (Athletics, Student Life, Chapel, Dining Hall, Cadets, Round Square, Student Ombudsman, and Mentors (for Forms II & III)).

This will give the Prefects more exposure, more responsibility, a better feeling of their own worth and more input into the major areas of school life. They will report directly to the Headmaster.

BCS continues to support RSIS (Round Square Independent Schools) projects both financially and with volunteers. This year, $1000 was sent to the Prince Alexander fund. This fund supplies bricks and mortar for the building of schools in impoverished countries around the world. Three students and one staff member took part in a community service project in the Dominican Republic to build an orphanage.

- Eight exchange students from around the globe stayed with us during the year and three of our students went away to St. Cyprian's School in South Africa, Gordonstoun in Scotland, and Ivanhoe Grammar School in Melbourne, Australia.

- Six students and two staff members attended the RS Conferences held in South Africa, at both St. Cyprian's and St. Stithian's Schools.

Ondaatje Endeavour

Throughout my life I have always wanted to push myself to the limit, to see what I can do, to know I can compete with anyone. When I heard of the Ondaatje trip to Peru, I knew it was a perfect opportunity. Not only were we going to bike 400km, we were going to do it in a country I had never dreamed of visiting. I had no idea what to expect, knowing very little about the landscape or the inhabitants. I was selected, along with Christiana Fizet, Juno Park, Kelli O'Reilly, and two teachers, Joel Fines and François Tessier. Months before the expedition, I tried to imagine what it would be like to see the endless deserts on either side of the road, how it would feel to stand on top of the ancient ruins of Machu Picchu. To prepare for this trip, I cycled two hours and did five basketball practices of ninety minutes per week.

Stephen Bath, Christiana
Fizet, François Tessier,

Park, and Joel Fines
in the Peruvian desert...

The goal of our trip was to complete by bicycle several legs of our tour through different sections of Peru. On biking days, we were up at 5 o'clock to pack up our campsite and still get on the road before being hit by the blazing heat. Some days in the desert the temperatures would top out well above 35 degrees, so even when we were resting we were soaked with sweat.

Experiencing the Peruvian culture was one of the things I will remember most. We ate in the local restaurants where a meal for one person (including soup) would cost roughly five soles, or two Canadian dollars. The afternoons were spent touring the area we stayed in and learning about the culture of Peru. We flew over the Nasca lines and climbed up to countless ruins, usually perched on top of the surrounding mountains. To put a cap on our trip we visited Machu Picchu, thought to have been a resort for the Incas. It is still in incredible condition due to the fact it went undiscovered until the early 1900s.

We were very lucky: there were no accidents, and the bikes were never damaged (we did suffer four flat tires, however, causing some of the members to spend portions of the day in the truck that followed us).

When we finished our trip, although tired, worn out and incredibly sore, the feeling of immense satisfaction and accomplishment was overwhelming, and made all of the difficulties worth it.

Italy

Over the March Break, five staff members, one parent, and thirty students went on a whirl-wind tour of Italy, visiting Milan, Verona, Venice, Florence, Assisi, Pompeii, Sorrento, Naples and finally Rome. They also got to drive through the exquisite regions of Tuscany and Umbria.

China – United Nations Conference

For the third straight year, BCS sent a dynamic team of students to China to attend the Model United Nations conference organized and hosted by the International School of Beijing (ISB).

For three days, they worked in committees debating, lobbying, voicing and writing resolutions on such topics as AIDS education in Africa, the use of renewable energies, and development in post-war Iraq.

No obstacle too big...

Staff Notes

- Two students scored 100% on the Canadian History governmental exam this year. A Merit Award was awarded to the teacher responsible for this achievement. Congratulations are in order to Peter Kandalaft (Peter has received a Merit Award every year since his arrival at BCS.) A tremendous achievement!
- Geraldine McGurk has contributed to the School in more ways than one for 25 years now. As the School Nurse today and an involved houseparent in years past, she has shown strength and dedication in both of these very demanding positions. Congratulations, Geraldine!

- John Digby was recognized for his 25 years of dedicated service to the School. A member of the grounds crew, he is an important part of the reason why the School looks as good as it does. Thank you John!

Arts

The 13th Annual Stoker Arts Festival was once again a huge success. Artists and artisans came from as far as Toronto to give workshops in belly dancing and hip hop dance, painting, jewelry making, Indian cooking, and theatre. The goal of this festival is to initiate students who would otherwise never pursue the arts due to course selection or personal apprehensions, and to initiate existing art students to new ways of expressing themselves.

Vincent Ou-Yang,
Class of 2009

Cadets

- The Cadet Corps marched in two parades this year, the Lennoxville Parade and the Black Watch Parade in Montreal. The School's marching band was also in attendance, keeping up the beat as well as everyone's expectations.
- Major Turner handed the #2 Cadet Corps to Captain Tessier this past season after 28 years of command.

Community service

- Argyll Centre: Every Sunday, a group of volunteers visited seniors with terminal illnesses, to chat and to bridge the generation gap.
- Girl Guides of Canada: Students helped out with the organizing and overseeing of badge-related tasks.
- Hoops: Every Sunday afternoon, activities were organized for Lennoxville area kids in both the gym and the rink.

Review of Accomplishments

University Acceptance, 2003–2004

- 100% of BCS students were accepted to the university of their choice.
- Scholarships tripled since last year!

In Canada: Acadia, Alberta, British Columbia, Brock, Carleton, Dalhousie, Guelph, Lakehead, McMaster, Mount Allison, Mount St. Vincent, UNB, Ottawa, UPEI, Queen's, Richard Ivey, Ryerson, St. Mary's, St. Thomas, Saskatchewan, Schulich School of Business, Simon Fraser, Toronto, Trent, Waterloo, Western, Wilfrid Laurier, Windsor, York.

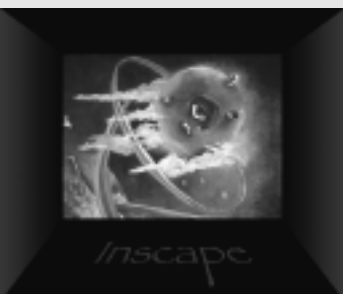

In the U.S.: Boston U., Boston College, Brown, Clark, Dartmouth, Dennison, Eckerd, Fordham, George Washington, Illinois-Urbana, Lehigh, Michigan State, NYU, Occidental, Kenyon, Northeastern, Oregon, Pace, U. of Pennsylvania, Penn State, Princeton, St. Lawrence, SUNY-Buffalo, Syracuse, Vanderbilt, Virginia, Virginia Tech, Washington, Whittier, Wisconsin-Madison.

In the U.K.: Coventry, Hull, Imperial College London, Kent, Manchester, Plymouth, Queen's Belfast, Roehampton, Sheffield, University College London, York/St. John's.

Literary Works

- BCS submitted poems and stories to Firstfruits, the Jewish Public Library's literary anthology. The results (blind judged) were impressive, to say the least. 49% (19/39) of the French pieces and 43% (54/126) of the English pieces chosen were from BCS students. Artwork was submitted for the first time, and 30% (9/30) of the pieces chosen came from BCS.
- A bilingual, day-long writing workshop was held at the School with eight professional writers and eighty students in attendance.

■ Inscape, our literary magazine, was ranked one of the 40 best magazines in North America. It received the Highest Award from The National Council of Teachers of English.

- Seven students from Forms II to VI have had their texts published through the Roland-Dubois Contest, from the Société St. Jean Baptiste.
- Three students had works published in Taproot III, a Townshippers Association publication.

some words from the Advancement Team

The best job just keeps getting better....

I thought I had the best job in the world when I was involved in development and my priority was connecting Alumni to Alumni, friends to friends and the School to you. This is, of course, still one of my favourite activities... I just love hearing from you! However, now that I am also involved in the area of admissions I get the pleasure and honour of introducing BCS to new families who will potentially place their trust in us to educate, care for and, yes, even discipline their children. This is quite an awesome responsibility but one that brings great satisfaction, especially when we, the Advancement team, are able to make connections that will remain for life.

And rest assured, Advancement at BCS is about connecting for life. As of January 2004 Advancement is made up of development, admissions and marketing/recruiting. In short, it is about making sure the world knows about BCS and all that it offers. I was hosting Radio Canada a few weeks ago while they filmed a segment on our Tablet PC project. The reporter, who had never been on campus before, was absolutely intrigued by our School. We spoke at length about balancing the rich heritage BCS enjoys with innovative pedagogy and school life practices. On Opening Day I met with parents who saw BCS with fresh eyes and I heard such positive and heart-warming feedback that I wish I could share it all with you. Certainly our honest and straight forward approach is appreciated by many, along with our commitment to a personalised and warm reception to:

- Families visiting the School for the first time,
- Alumni who may not have been back for many years,
- KHC ladies who did not attend BCS but are one of us nonetheless, and
- Journalists who report on us.

And so at the end of the day BCS is so much more than a school and the students learn so much more than facts from textbooks. We teach our young to live and learn and think in today's modern and high-tech world while holding dear the lessons handed down to us throughout our history. The best of all worlds I would say. And as our wise Headmaster says in his article, finding the balance between the two is the challenge, but one that BCS is facing and surpassing.

Please, let the world know about us! Send them our way so we can further strengthen our community, from all corners of the world.

—Theo Brinckman (BCS'84),
Director of Advancement

A Word from the new Development Guy

What follows is a tame, censored version of the original (dismissed and burned publicly in the quad immediately after conception). It is now safe to throw caution to the wind and read on...

Some of you read these lines in complete shock, many more of you with a hint of surprise. Well, nobody is more surprised than I. Putting together The Bulletin was a great way to re-establish contact with many old classmates, and the comments I have been privy to have ranged from, "Are you nuts?" right through to, "Are they nuts?"

Right after the interview, life became simple. I knew I had to come back to BCS to work with my heart for a change. I never felt that at the company I previously worked for. In their defense, I didn't spend my adolescence in their buildings; I grew up at BCS. This school brought out the best in me when I was a student, so the same should hold true ten years later...

What I wish to do with this letter (other than raise a few million dollars) is let you in on a goal or two of this office. As you can probably guess, the first goal has to do with money. Your money, actually. That is the nature of development! Ensuring the School raises enough money to function and develop, year after year, is a daily priority and concern for me.

BCS is once again a very marketable product, with new buildings, Tablet PCs, a girls rugby team... there are no more immediate needs with regards to education. Maybe I am nuts, but I think it is time to squirrel away the majority of this year's annual gifts and endow them, and while the School remains at the top of the education food chain, we should continue to do so. Spending capital means no residual, which means mortgaging the future. With a large endowment fund, scholarships and financial aid get paid out (Scholarship Fund), facilities are maintained and improved (Heritage Fund), and you get fewer letters from me asking you if you have made your annual contribution. In theory, anyway...

One important side-effect to having a large endowment fund concerns scholarships and financial aid to students. The scholarships we already have are playing a huge role in shaping the School. The recipients of these scholarships and financial assistance are here because they want to be, and they work hard. Very hard. They are also appreciative when they graduate, in terms of time and dollars given back to the School. This kind of relationship is of the utmost importance. Imagine a school with endowments large enough to give financial assistance to half its students! The mid- to long-term benefits would be astonishing... and daily student-life would be that much more stimulating. This is only one tangent of the global endowment fund; you can imagine just how big a role 'sleeping' dollars can play in the future of BCS.

The other half of my mandate has to do with Old Boys/Girls personally, not their wallets. We organize numerous events throughout the country to reach as many of you as we can, and to give Alumni a good reason to get together to raise a glass or two. It is easy to lose track of old classmates over the course of the year, let alone since graduation. Your participation in these events, especially if you do not have the habit of coming out to them, is crucial in ensuring that everyone has a great time, and gets a big dose of nostalgia to boot. Bring pictures of your kids, old pictures of you at the School; it makes for a super evening! It is also fun to chat with grads from different generations to hear stories explaining why they think the kids have it easy today, because 'back in their day...' I must admit I also find myself already starting many of my sentences like that.

So, that's the short word from the new guy. For more info, please come see me, call me, or send me an e-mail.

Your opinions/concerns/ideas are all relevant and of interest to me.

Enjoy the class notes, and in the wise words of Cliff, verse 1, "Keep your head up!"

Making it happen

Marketing often just happens. At BCS it happens on Mountain Day in the fall. It happens in parent-teacher interviews. It happens on our website and in every issue of the E-tie and The Bulletin. It happens at various sporting events around the School. It happens at Alumni receptions and on golf courses around the world. And, most importantly, it happens on campus every single day. Students, teachers, staff, Alumni and friends of the School are constantly delivering a message about BCS, in what we do and in what we say, whether we know it or not! My job is to help manage the messages that are out there and make sure they are being heard loud and clear across the globe.

When I say "manage the messages" I am referring to determining what aspects of BCS life we should be putting more emphasis on when speaking to student prospects, developing materials and advertisements that reflect these strengths, and choosing markets in which to concentrate our efforts.

When I joined the Advancement team last spring my first assignment was to re-design one of our main marketing tools – the BCS viewbook. It was important to make sure the content of the viewbook truly reflect what BCS is all about. As a result of conducting a number of focus groups and one-on-one interviews with several members of the BCS community, asking them to provide us with feedback, we now have a viewbook with a fresh new look. We also have a brand new series of ads with an adventurous, international appeal, and an arsenal of ideas on how to improve our other main marketing tool – the website. We listened to the messages our community was conveying and put them to work!

Finally, we decided to adopt a more focused approach

in how we spread our message. By inviting prospective students to special recruiting events, holding one-on-one meetings with families, placing our ads in specific local publications, and visiting feeder schools in each market, BCS has been able to deliver a more personal, individualised message.

As I said before, marketing just happens, but a lot of time and effort go into managing how it happens. So, as you find yourself extolling the virtues of a BCS education, keep in mind that you are helping us MAKE IT HAPPEN...

—Tiffany Crook,

Associate Director of Marketing

Admissions

With the start of school behind us, the Advancement team is now focusing on the important task of recruitment. Over the past year we have examined the whole admissions process and made the necessary changes that we feel will help lead the way in this year's admissions cycle. Private information sessions will be hosted this year in new markets for BCS. We will be visiting Yellowknife, Quebec City, the Atlantic Provinces and Asia in an attempt to get our share of these profitable markets. We are putting a stronger focus on personal visits to the School because we know that one-on-one attention is what hooks a family. We are promoting the numerous scholarships that are available to our students. We have a revamped viewbook that we feel represents the true essence of BCS, and a newly-created ad campaign that focuses on one of our primary strengths ~ internationalism. We have created a new contract for our international educational agents that will encourage them to refer more students to our School. We have also called on various staff and faculty to assist us during the admissions process. Most importantly, the Advancement department works as a team and draws on each other's area of expertise.

Now, where do you come in? Alumni and current families are amongst the greatest recruitment tools that we have. What better way to sell our product than to call on those who have experienced all the wonderful things that BCS has to offer? We simply ask that you feed us your referrals. We are always looking for students from across the globe that will truly benefit from the BCS experience. With a strong academic programme, a beautiful 350-acre campus, diverse student population, Round Square, the Ondaatje Endeavour, a mandatory athletic programme, small class sizes, dedicated faculty and staff, scholarship and financial aid assistance and numerous travel opportunities, BCS has something for everyone. So whether it be family, friends, colleagues, neighbours or simply acquaintances, let them know about BCS and let us know who may be interested in our School. Once you get them to us we promise they will be in good hands.

Alumni News

Reunions and Events

The BCS Alumni Board works in conjunction with the development office to organize and promote social and sporting events in Quebec, aimed at keeping Alumni in touch with Alumni and the School.

Doug Bruce (BCS '60)
with his lovely wife, Rosena, in Vancouver.

This year's social reunions went coast-to-coast, from New York to Malibu in the States and from Montreal to Vancouver north of the border. Hundreds of graduates, including a healthy turn-out of first-timers, came out to raise a glass and talk about their times at BCS and KHC, and to catch up on the years passed. This year sees Halifax, Quebec City, and Ottawa being added to the list.

Beach boys Andrew Calder (BCS '82) and
Andrew McNaughton
(BCS '81) in Malibu.

Jean-Luc Martin (BCS '84)
holding his daughter Mel, Peter Benesh (BCS '65) with wife Marlene,
Paul Almond (BCS '48), and Lewis Evans (BCS '65) enjoy the beach in Malibu.

Naomi and Tony Abbott (BCS '49) put up with Lewis Evans (BCS '65)
in Victoria.

Alumni Hockey hoodlums...

The sporting calendar starts off with the annual hockey tournament, now in its second year of the new all BCS format. Proving to be very popular, we accommodate up to six teams that each get to play at least five 30-minute games with time in between to rest and recover for those who need it. This year's tournament was followed up with cocktails and dinner at Sebby's (Louis Pilon (BCS '91)) where questionable accounts of the past events could be overheard.

February in Montreal falls under the "survival" category, and reaching a bar in the downtown area certainly deserves to be labeled an athletic feat. In what has become an annual ritual, BCS night at McKibbin's Irish Pub is a sure way to chase away the mid-winter blues. The event has proven to be a great evening to catch up with old friends and to meet new ones. In the past few years we have had Alumni from five different decades attend, and hope this becomes a healthy trend.

Mike Weir (BCS '78), Bart MacDougall (BCS '54), Himat Matthew (BCS '78), and Kathy Winsor Robertson (KHC '68).

As the snow gives way to green grass, the BCS golf tournament attracts both the avid as well as the social golfer. Each year at the end of May or early June we host the BCS Alumni Classic in the Eastern Townships.

This year's contest was held in Bromont in what proved to be less than ideal conditions.

Despite Mother Nature's efforts, sixty dedicated golfers

"Four!" – Tim Price (BCS '75), Danny Lalonde (BCS '72), Hiral Matthew (BCS '77), and Peter Smith (BCS '72) are all smiles at the Alumni golf tournament... (Obviously a pre-round picture!)

Get a grip! Fred shows us his technique... Alex Cobbett (BCS '94), Fred Corey (BCS '94), Chris Newman (BCS '93), Tom Ashcroft (BCS '93).

The Alumni board also organizes an Alumni speaker series where we look for Alumni or friends of BCS who have experienced exceptional adventures or careers to come back to the School and recount their endeavors to the students. Last March we had Monty Price (BCS '92) talk about his experience as an army intelligence officer. If you are interested in having a friendly chat with all the students in the Chapel (not to make it sound intimidating!), let us know by sending the School an e-mail at dev@BishopsCollegeSchool.com.

completed the round, followed by well-deserved cocktails, dinner and prizes in the clubhouse. The men's trophy went to J.D. Fournier (BCS '03), and the women's event was won by Nancy Layton for a mind-boggling ninth year in a row.

Peter Aird (BCS '44) chats it up with Gordon Sharwood (BCS '49).

Gord Ritchie (BCS '72) with his wife Debbie and Brian Duclos (BCS '69) enjoying cocktails in Calgary.

Duke of Edinburgh's Award

Okill Stuart (BCS '37) with His Royal Highness Prince Philip at Balmoral.

Bishop's College School is proud to offer all students, beginning in Form IV, the opportunity to earn the prestigious Duke of Edinburgh's Award, an international programme that operates in more than 100 countries.

Founded in 1956 by HRH Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, the Award aims to develop character, leadership and personal discipline in youth. As of 2004, nearly four million young people have been involved worldwide.

Introduced to Canada in 1963, the Duke of Edinburgh's Award is open to all young people between the ages of 14 and 25. The Award currently attracts some 30,000 participants annually and is operational in all 10 provinces and three territories.

There are three levels to the award: Bronze, Silver, and Gold – each with an increasing degree of commitment. Within each level there are four sections.

Service – encourages participants to realize that, as members of a community, they have responsibility to others and that their help is needed.

Expeditions – develops self-reliance by undertaking an interesting journey of discovery.

Skills – encourages participants to discover and develop personal interests and social and practical skills.

Physical Recreation – encourages participation in physical activity and to learn to appreciate physical recreation as an important component of a healthy lifestyle.

The Duke of Edinburgh's Award is based on the educational philosophy of Dr. Kurt Hahn, founder of Gordonstoun School, the United World Colleges, Outward Bound, and the Round Square – a worldwide association of schools whose students share a commitment, beyond academic excellence, to personal development and responsibility through service, challenge, adventure and international understanding. BCS has been a member of the Round Square since 1986.

More than 185 students are currently active in the Duke of Edinburgh's Award at BCS and a Bronze Level presentation has been planned for Saturday, May 28th, 2005. The Honourable Jean Charest, Premier of Quebec and former Deputy Prime Minister of Canada, will be the guest of honour and will present Award certificates to BCS students who have fulfilled their Bronze Level requirements.

Reunion at Balmoral Castle

After taking command of the Fort St. Helen Garrison of the 78th Highlanders Regiment in 2003, Major Okill Stuart (BCS '37) began planning a tour of Scotland for the young members of his regiment. Major Stuart's first initiative was to contact Gordonstoun School (in northern Scotland) where the Headmaster generously offered to house the entire squad for three days of the tour. Both Okill Stuart and his brother Campbell Stuart (BCS '35) attended Gordonstoun following their studies at BCS. While at Gordonstoun another young man, Prince Philip of Greece (later the Duke of Edinburgh), was a fellow student.

With Balmoral Castle only a short distance from Gordonstoun, Major Stuart contacted Buckingham Palace and arrangements were made for the regiment to perform in the presence of HRH Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh. At Balmoral on the day of the performance, just as the rain started to subside, Prince Philip drove up in his Range Rover and, much to everyone's surprise, Her Majesty The Queen stepped out from the passenger seat.

During the forty-five minute performance, which included pipes, drums, sword dancing and an 18th century musket drill, The Queen remarked to Major Stuart how thoughtful it was, "to have brought such fine Canadian weather with you." Major Stuart replied that it had, "nothing to do with us, it is Her Majesty's presence that brought the sun out to shine."

The highlight of the day came after the parade when The Queen and Prince Philip walked among the regimental ranks to shake hands with all in attendance; even those lads whose hands were still covered in gun powder.

Nemo Me Impune Lacessit

Following the death of The Queen Mother, HRH Prince Charles, The Prince of Wales has been named Colonel-in-Chief of the Black Watch Regiment. Bishop's College School Cadet Corps #2, the oldest continuous service corps in Canada, has been affiliated with the Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada since 1936.

Brian William Whitlow, 1914–2004

on August 15th, 2004
BCS Chaplain and Classics Master

After the war, Brian Whitlow, his wife, and two young children immigrated to Canada from England. He arrived at BCS as Chaplain and Classics Master in 1946, and was present for every service in the Little Chapel. Centrally located, on the quad side of the Schoolhouse basement, this place of worship was used until the building of St. Martin's Chapel in 1959. He was also responsible for making Communion more frequently available for the students. Reverend Whitlow became Master in charge of the Prep School in 1949, until the summer of 1952, when he gave up his academic position for that of a mission priest in the Gaspé region. He played a big role at BCS for six years, often changing hats like today's staff. Thank you, Brian, and may you be welcomed into the house of heaven as warmly as you welcomed others into your own.

KHC Notes

KHC '52

Anne Thornton Tucker e-mailed: "I retired from Vintage Petroleum in Tulsa, OK, March 1st where I had been employed for 15 years, and am thoroughly enjoying my free time. I have worked as a Geological Technician a total of 23 years, drawing maps (first by hand, then on the computer) providing support and research for geologists in two Oil Companies. I have more time now to travel, visit family, volunteer, square dance, fill up a scrapbook, sleep in late, bug my husband, and get into mischief, etc... In July, we drove to Long Island for a surprise 40th birthday party for our #3 offspring. In total there were 12 family members from Florida, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Oklahoma, Texas, and would you believe, Brazil (husband's step mom and sister). On the way there, we stopped off in Southern New Jersey to visit my Compton school chum, Val Gill Licht (KHC '53) and her husband Al. It was such fun seeing them both again. Val attended her class reunion last year and had a great time. I got to see all the wonderful photos. Unfortunately, we were so busy talking (who would have guessed?) that we didn't take any photos!"

Anne Thornton Tucker (KHC '52) and husband Thomas, with their graduating granddaughter, Reba.

KHC '53

Val Gill Licht checked in by e-mail: "I know most of our class is alive and kicking because we had our 50th reunion last September in Montreal. Joan Sheard and I roomed together for the second time in 50 years. This time we had air conditioning, TV, maid service and a well-stocked bar; unlike our years at Compton! Our Canadian classmates treated us royally, and we had a great week-end.

My husband and I are both retired. He, from teaching in the Princeton, NJ school system, and I from the NJ Dept of Health where, as an RN, I was a Nursing Home Inspector. We live in an Active Adult Community in Columbus, NJ, and I keep very busy working with a cat rescue group and a wildlife rehabilitation center.

We have two little grand daughters, ages 6 months and 2 years who live about an hour away. Up until a year ago our son and wife lived in CA., so it's so great to have them close by. We had a good visit from Thumper and her husband several weeks ago. Lots of talk about our years at King's Hall!"

Alison also visited Lynne Mayburry McGuffin (KHC '53) in Ottawa. I had a chance encounter on an Ottawa street with Heather Anderson

It was a street neither of us had ever used before, so we decided we were 'meant' to meet! Hi to all of you from '53."

For the last four years, Olivia (Rorke) Barr (KHC '54) has been on a dragonboat team of breast cancer survivors in Victoria, BC. In March 2003, she paddled with a Winnipeg team, Chemo Savvy, in New Zealand in both Auckland and Wellington for the South Pacific Championships; in April 2004, she paddled with Canadians Abreast in the World Dragonboat Championships in Cape Town, South Africa. In winter, she paddles in the outriggers. Paddlers in Victoria have an advantage over other dragonboat and outrigger paddlers in Canada because they can paddle all year round.

Author Ann Fraser Budge has slowly been easing away from biking/hiking in the mountains and has started gliding across lakes in a kayak. As the donor of the 40 Years On Award, Ann definitely lives up the description: 'Awarded to the Emily Black e-mailed: "I have bought a farm in the Beaver Valley close to Thornbury/Blue Mountain on south Georgian Bay. My lifelong dream of having a pet farm has materialized (horse, baby donkey, rabbit, etc...) I always wanted my grandchildren to develop a love of animals and this is my way of encouraging that. After 20 years in investment sales, I am now a Realtor with Royal LePage and love finding clients homes in the Georgian Triangle... a great retirement and recreational area. If any KHC or BCS Alumni are in the area, I urge them to come to Thornbury and join me for a cup of coffee at The Bakery!"

Stephen Mulherin sent in a good story: "My wife Diana and I were in Scotland to visit our daughter who has just started at the University of St. Andrews. Diana and I were able to sneak in a golf game at the legendary Old Course. I had returned to look around the 18th green and first tee to watch some of my daughter's friends tee off and noticed some well dressed gentlemen sitting in front of the clubhouse. As these gentlemen walked by, my eye caught one of their ties. Could that have been an Old Boys tie that walked by? I couldn't help but follow the tie into the gift shop to take a closer look and confront the wearer: It turned out to be Matt Kenny (BCS '79) who arrived at BCS the year after I had left but we had lots of common friends, one of whom was David Stenason (BCS '75). I told Dave the story and complained my lack of an Old Boys tie. Needless to say, one arrived two days later in Calgary!"

POV

by Dr. Sandra Booth

The BCS teachers were surprised last May when the Headmaster announced the new Tablet PC initiative of the School for the coming year. Since then, over the summer, we have had an opportunity to explore the potential of this new technology and it is very exciting indeed.

*Sang Yeop Lee (BCS '04)
using the new Tablet PC.*

The convertible Tablet PC, which has been provided to every student in the School, can be used as a simple laptop computer, consisting of a screen with the traditional keyboard and mouse. Alternatively, in slate mode, an electronic pen replaces the keyboard and mouse. This option allows both students and teachers to hand-write class notes, comments, papers and other documents. The unit comes with impressive software capable of translating these words and letters into editable clear text which may then be saved in other software such as Microsoft Word. The software therefore allows annotation of any document and will be of great use in the editing and correcting of essays, lab reports, etc. Other features of the Tablet PC include a complete set of drawing tools and powerful speech recognition software, which may prove of especially great value for students with some types of learning difficulties as it allows the input of text using the spoken word.

The Tablet PC also has a built-in wireless adaptor which connects to the school network, enabling students to save all their notes, assignments, and papers either on their hard drive or on the school server. This wireless networking allows access to information and the Internet wherever the student or teacher is on campus. Students are, for example, able to e-mail their assignments directly to their teachers and receive feedback in the same way.

The Tablet PC initiative coincides with the opening of the newly renovated Pattison Science building and this promises to be very exciting for those of us who teach Science. Each science classroom/lab has been provided with an LCD projector. These are ideal for projecting videos or computer software onto a screen allowing students to follow the presentation. Class data can be collated and projected for immediate analysis and discussion and, with the Tablet PC connected to the projection unit, teachers are able both to project and save hand-written class notes. One obvious advantage of this feature is that students who miss class for whatever reason will have available to them the teacher's class notes.

In the biology lab, our new Moticam Digital camera will convert standard biological or stereomicroscopes into more powerful digital learning tools. With its powerful Motic Images software, it enhances learning by letting students capture, save, measure, and manipulate microscopy images either as real-time live videos or as still images. We believe that having these abilities will engage our students' interest and foster active participation in the lab investigations. Students are encouraged to use this technology to create their own multimedia science presentations, in line with the recommendations of the new Quebec Education Programme.

Introduction and integration of the new technologies into every aspect of academic life at BCS adds new dimensions to both teaching and learning this year. We have some idea of the changes that the Tablet PC will bring to us but only in actually using it will we discover the true potential we have provided for our students. This promises to be a very exciting and challenging year for both the teachers and students of the School!
